inspector of workshope under the new Factory Act.

The Portadown Young Men's Association held its usual weekly meeting on Thursday evening, 4th November—the President, George Kinkaid, Esq., in the chair. There was a good attendance of both members and visitors. The usual preliminaries having been disposed of, the chairman called upon Mr Stewart Hyde, in connection with his subject, "Leaves from the Book of Nature." Out of a book so voluminous Mr Hyde selected for the consideration of his audience, "Heat," as his subject for the evening, which he delivered in the form of a lecture, in preference to that of a written paper. The lecturer was at home in his interesting subject, which he treated, as far as time permitted, in a very exhaustive and very able manner, and having replied to the various criticisms which, though varying in style and tone, were very favourable, the meeting was brought to a close in the usual way. The essayist for the next evening is Mr Charles M'Dermott, subject: "Education."—Cor.
